

4th Postgraduate Conference in Conflict Archaeology

Sunday 6th to Tuesday 8th of December 2015

Ioannou Centre for Classical and Byzantine Studies

University of Oxford

Register online at: <https://postgraduateconflictarchaeologyconference.wordpress.com/dates/>

Programme

Sunday 6th of December

13:00: Registration opens

13:30: Theme 1: Nautical and coastal conflict

13:30. Welcome and introduction

13:35. Graduate Keynote Speaker: Invisible but not forgotten naval battlefield. Researching the naval battlefield of Russo - Swedish war (1788-1790) at Svensksund, Kotka. Riikka Alvik, National Board of Antiquities of Finland, University of Helsinki.

14:10. Finding Maritime Battlefields: two 18th Century Naval Conflicts in the Baltic Sea. Johanna Makinen, University of Helsinki

14:50. Towards an Archaeology of Boarding: Naval Hand-to-Hand Combat Tactics of Northwestern Europe in the 16th Century. Rolf Warming, Combat Archaeology

15:20. Presentation of the project Combat Archaeology by Rolf Warming.

15:30: Break

15:50. Suffering a sea change: the osteological evidence of disease and injury in the British Royal Navy (1850- 1815). Ceridwen Boston, Research Laboratory for Archaeology and the History of Art, University of Oxford.

16:20. Deltebre I: a British ordnance store ship sunk at the coast of Tarragona. Pablo de la Fuente de Pablo, Vistula University & Marcel Pujol Hamelink, Escola Superior de Restauració i Conservació de Béns Cultural de Catalunya.

16:50. Last of the Wooden Walls? The Retirement of the Royal Navy's Last Sailing Battle Fleet and its Archaeological Implications. Giles Richardson, University of Oxford.

17:20. The archeology of the battle: the siege of Roses and the Federico Gravina's naval squadron. The wrecks of men-of-war San Isidro and Triunfante (1794-5). Pablo de la Fuente de Pablo, Vistula University & Marcel Pujol Hamelink, Escola Superior de Restauració i Conservació de Béns Cultural de Catalunya.

17:30: Wine reception

Organized by the Postgraduate students at the Oxford Centre for Maritime Archaeology (OCMA).

Contact: conflictarchaeology@gmail.com

4th Postgraduate Conference in Conflict Archaeology

Sunday 6th to Tuesday 8th of December 2015

Ioannou Centre for Classical and Byzantine Studies
University of Oxford

Register online at: <https://postgraduateconflictarchaeologyconference.wordpress.com/dates/>

Programme

Monday 7th of December

09:30: Registration opens

10:00: Keynote Speaker: The application of forensic archaeology and anthropology to conflict sites. Nicholas Grant-Marquez, Cranfield University

10:30: Theme 1: Nautical and coastal conflict continues

10:30. The battle of Roanoke island. Luke Simonds, East Carolina University

11:00. Changing tides: reflexive allegiances and conflict between Mi'kmaq and colonisers in the Canadian Maritimes. Jordan Graham, University of Oxford

11:30: Tea break

12:00: Theme 2: Conflict in the Ancient and Classical world

12:00. Too fragile to fight? High-lead weapons during the late Shang, China (c.1200- 1050 B.C.). Qin Cao, University of Oxford

12:30. Identifying Roman Battlefield Locations through Battlefield Camps. Joanne Ball, University of Liverpool

13:00. Archaeological evidences that suggests a siege on the iberian-roman wall of Cástulo (Spain). Santiago Quesada-García, Escuela Técnica Superior de Arquitectura (School of Architecture), Malaga University, and Luis José García-Pulido, Escuela de Estudios Árabes (EEA), CSIC

13:30: Lunch break (1hr. Light sandwiches and juice provided at the venue)

14:30. Trajan's Dacian Wars – A Chimera for Romanian Conflict Archaeology. George Cupcea, Babes-Bolyai University

15:00: Theme 3: Medieval and Early Modern conflict

15:00. Munitions of the Latin East: Neglected Physical Evidence of Trebuchet Technology, Michael Fulton, Cardiff University

15:30. Archaeological remains from the siege of Madinat Basta (Baza, Spain), by the Catholic monarchs in 1489, Luis José García-Pulido, Escuela de Estudios Árabes, CSIC, and Alejandro Caballero Cobos, Centro de Estudios y Arqueología Bastetana (Baza, Spain)

16:00 – 18:00: Tour of Oxford (optional)

19:30: Conference Dinner at At Thai Restaurant in High Street

Organized by the Postgraduate students at the Oxford Centre for Maritime Archaeology (OCMA).

Contact: conflictarchaeology@gmail.com

4th Postgraduate Conference in Conflict Archaeology

Sunday 6th to Tuesday 8th of December 2015

Ioannou Centre for Classical and Byzantine Studies
University of Oxford

Register online at: <https://postgraduateconflictarchaeologyconference.wordpress.com/dates/>

Programme

Tuesday 8th of December

09:30: Registration opens

10:00: Theme 3: Medieval and Early Modern conflict continues

10:00. The frontier landscape between Al-Andalus and the military order of Santiago: an study of the archaeological structures preserved in this conflict borderland. Santiago Quesada-García, Escuela Técnica Superior de Arquitectura (School of Architecture), Malaga University, and Luis José García-Pulido, Escuela de Estudios Árabes (EEA), CSIC

10:30. Experimental firing and analysis of impacted 17th-18th century lead bullets, Colin Parkman, University of Huddersfield

11:00. Defence of an Early Modern Garrison, Richard Leese, University of Huddersfield

11:30: Tea break

12:00: Theme 4: Contemporary conflict

12:00. Gill's War, David Savage, University of Bristol

12:30. How does the military modification (reuse and reworking) of existing cultural features of the landscape change through time and space, and what does this reveal about perceptions of rural cultural heritage and the formation of militarised landscapes? Krissy Moore, University of Sheffield

13:00. 'Archaeology of Alcohol: Military Culture during WW1', Sarah Ashbridge, University of Bradford

13:30: Lunch break (1hr. Light sandwiches and juice provided at the venue)

14:30. Death, Burial and Identification in the Landscape of Industrial War 1914-18, Sarah Ashbridge, University of Bradford

15:00 The Archaeology of a Day - History and Archaeology of a Western Front Battlefield. David Brown, of Cranfield University

15:30: Tea break

16:00. Discussion panel: What is the role of archaeology in Modern day conflict?

16:00. What is the role of Museums in Modern day conflicts? Paul Collins, Jaleh Hearn Curator for Ancient Near East, Ashmolean Museum

16:10. What is the role of the University in Modern day conflicts? Emma Cunliffe, Endangered Archaeology project, University of Oxford

16:20. What is the role of archaeologists in Modern day conflict? Javier Naranjo, International Commission of Missing Persons (TBC)

16:30. Open floor for discussion

17:30: Conference ends.

Organized by the Postgraduate students at the Oxford Centre for Maritime Archaeology (OCMA).

Contact: conflictarchaeology@gmail.com

